

'JAMES BARR: THIRST TRAP'

He's looking for The One, and it could be you!

"I've tried the apps, I've tried Guardian Blind Date, I've tried it on with everyone!"

James Barr (MTV, Attitude Magazine, 'A Gay and a NonGay') is a millennial, hates being single, and thinks dating in 2018 "is a disaster." So he's ditching the London men and bringing his first ever solo stand-up show to Brighton Fringe. But he doesn't just want you to laugh, he wants you to scream: "I do!"

In this 60-minute make-out session, audience members can join love-crushed James on stage for a date and the chance to become his betrothed. Plus he'll confess his own ridiculous dating disasters, his disdain for Disney, and reveal why it's basically foreplay to finger an avocado.

Whether you're single, coupled-up, or snogging 'round the seafront, come enter James Barr's Thirst Trap for the most hilarious wedding day ever!

Laughing Horse, Caroline of Brunswick, 23rd – 25th May 2018 at 22.00.

Tickets: £5. To book: imjamesbarr.com.

JAMES BARR BIO

James is an MTV presenter, columnist for Attitude Magazine, and co-hosts the UK's leading, multiple award-nominated LGBTQ+ podcast 'A Gay and a NonGay', as well as the massive US/UK Royal Wedding podcast, 'When Meghan met Harry'.

James also has a number of TV projects in development, as well as being a regular host at Manchester and Student Prides. Previous comedy experience includes videos for Comedy Central, regular improv performances, and he once did a great 4-minute stand-up set, so an hour-long show should be easy, right?

He's also had more boyfriends than Taylor Swift. Many more. So many more.

'A Gay and a NonGay' has been nominated for Best Comedy at this year's British Podcast Awards, and was described by the Radio Times as: "One of the most fundamentally kind and funny podcasts in Britain". A live version is also being staged during Brighton Fringe at the Marlborough Theatre, June 2nd, at 21:00.
