

Grant McLachlan presents
What Ever Happened to Baby Jane McDonald?

A new and original show celebrating a 20-year obsession with Wakefield's number one export, the legendary JANE MCDONALD, cruises into the Brighton Fringe Festival.

Welcome to the Brighton meeting of the self-help group 'Jane McDonald Anonymous'. Let Grant McLachlan, the newly-elected leader of an elite group of Jane superfans called the 'Cruisettes', steer you through your 8-step voyage, from admitting to celebrating your obsession with everything that is Jane McDonald.

Grant McLachlan, a former Metropolitan Police detective turned primary teacher, devised the show after he was filmed at his school for the Channel 5 show 'Jane & Friends'. Thanks to her award-winning 'Cruising with Jane McDonald' series, she is at the top of her career, so this show will speak to anyone who feels that they need a bit of showtune sparkle, camp banter and Jane McDonald in their lives – and frankly, who doesn't?

Speaking about the show, Grant says, "I have always been in love with Jane, so when I saw the impact she had on my class when she surprised us at school, I thought, there is a fun and fabulous show right here just bursting to put on a feather boa and tell its story!"

Grant is a lifelong member of the Jane McDonald fan club and is an out-and-proud superfan. This is his debut Brighton Fringe show, but he performed the show at the Edinburgh Fringe in 2018 to Jane fans, old and new.

*"I mean, I've been cruising many, many times, but this is the biggest thing I've ever seen" Jane McDonald, 2019.

*"There's so much to commend about this debut...it will be exciting to see what McLachlan will offer as he grows in confidence as a performer." The Wee Review, 2018.
